The Little Engine That Could

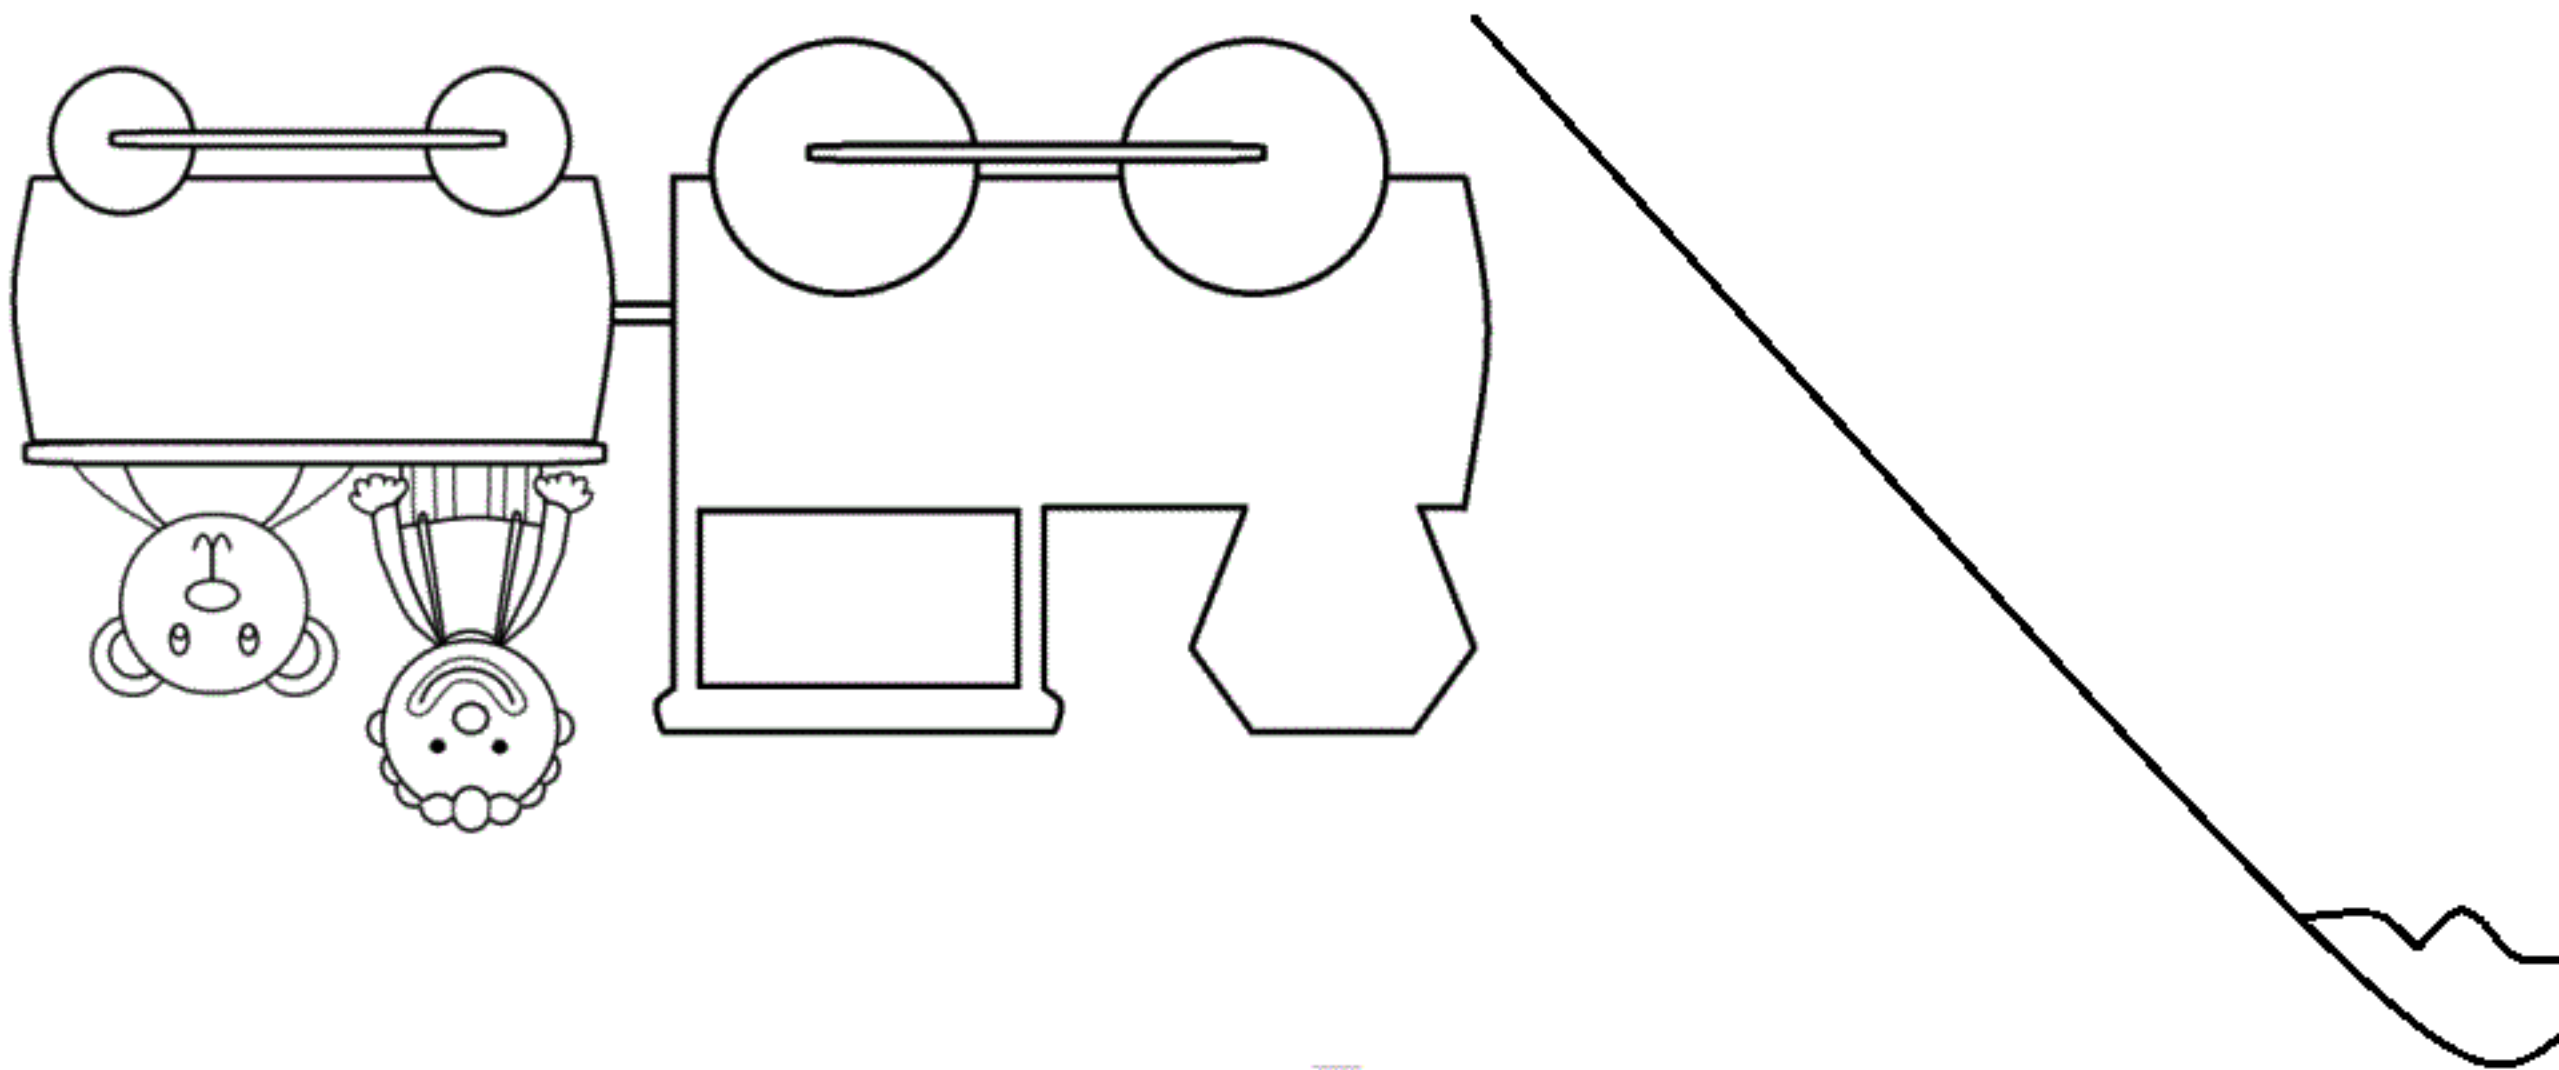

A little blue engine was taking toys to the city.

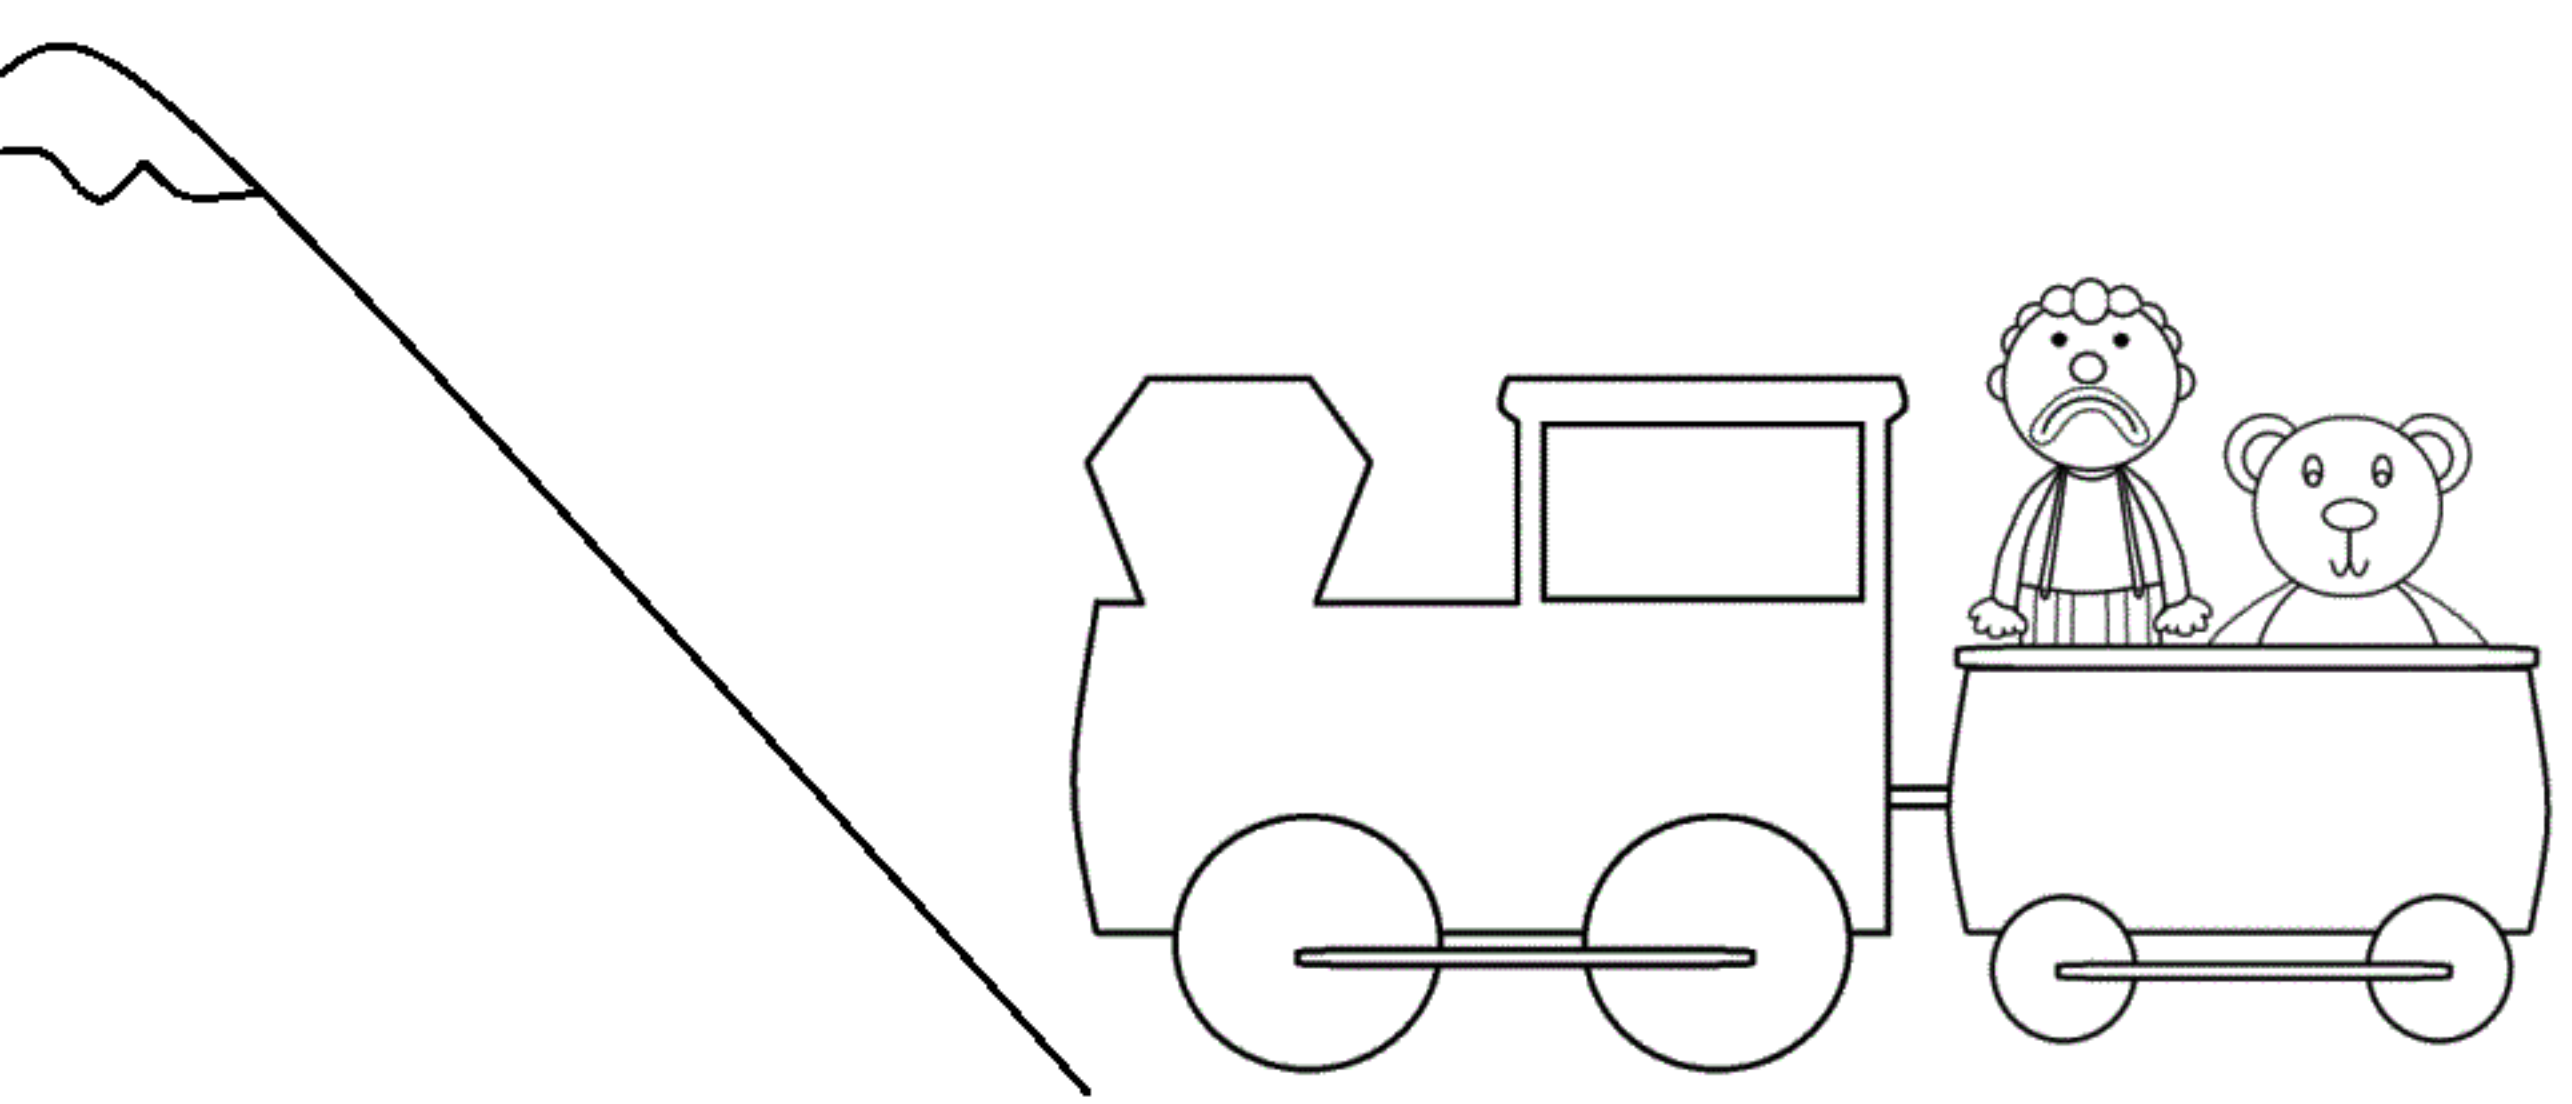

He came to a mountain. It was very high.

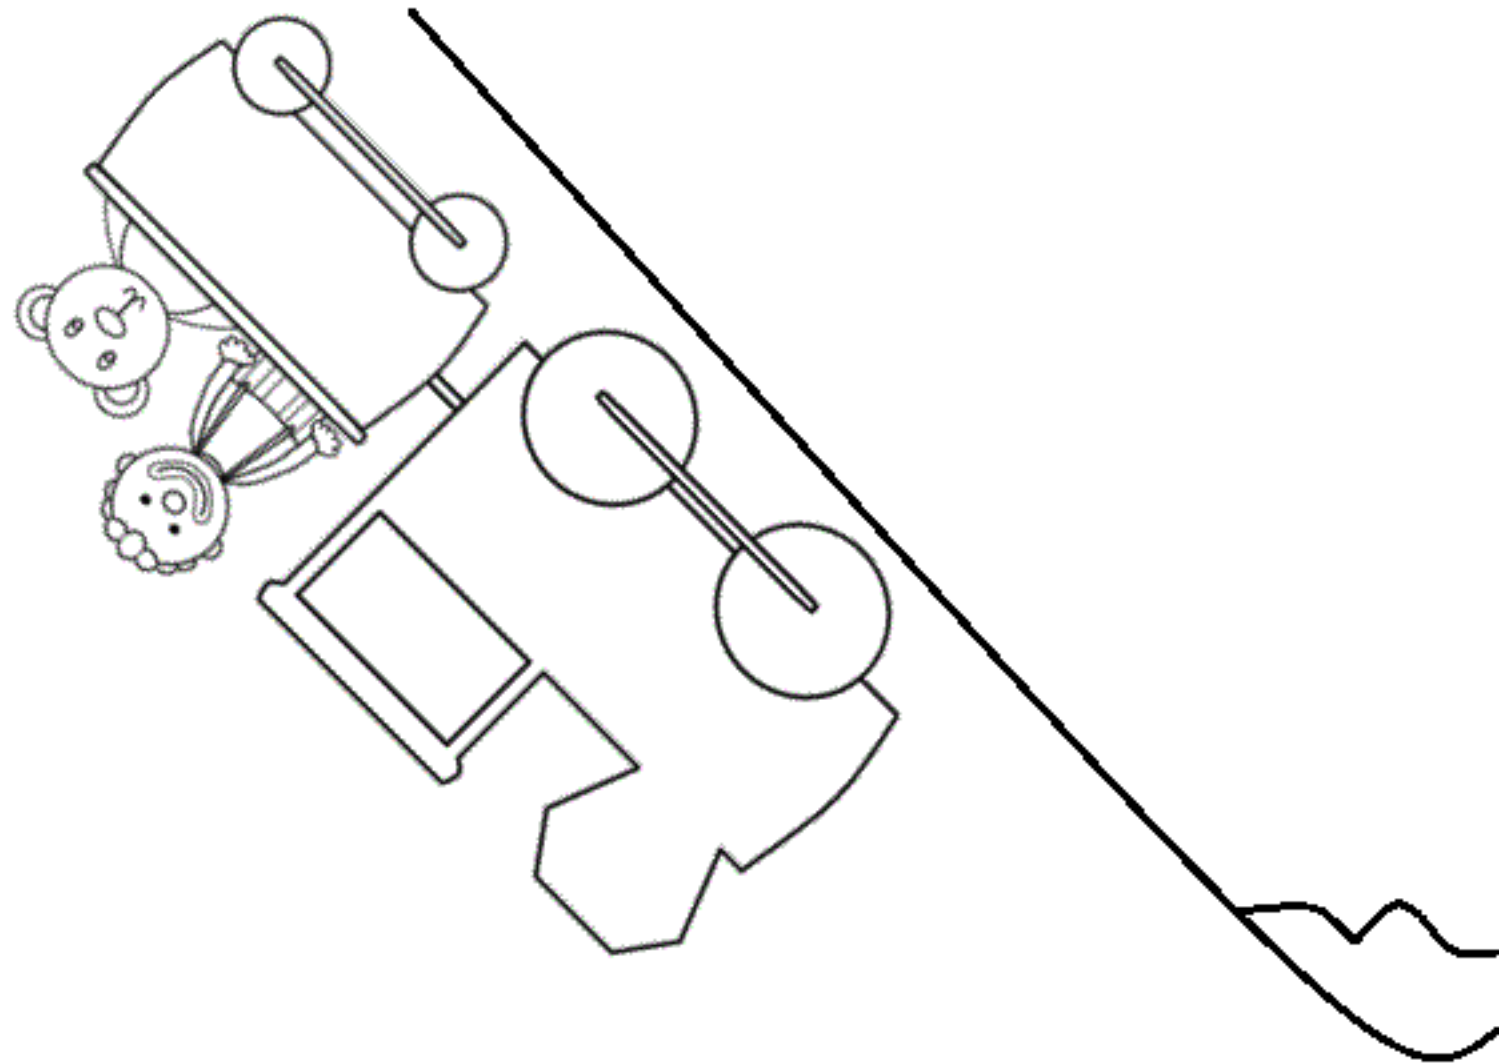

The little engine could not get up the mountain.

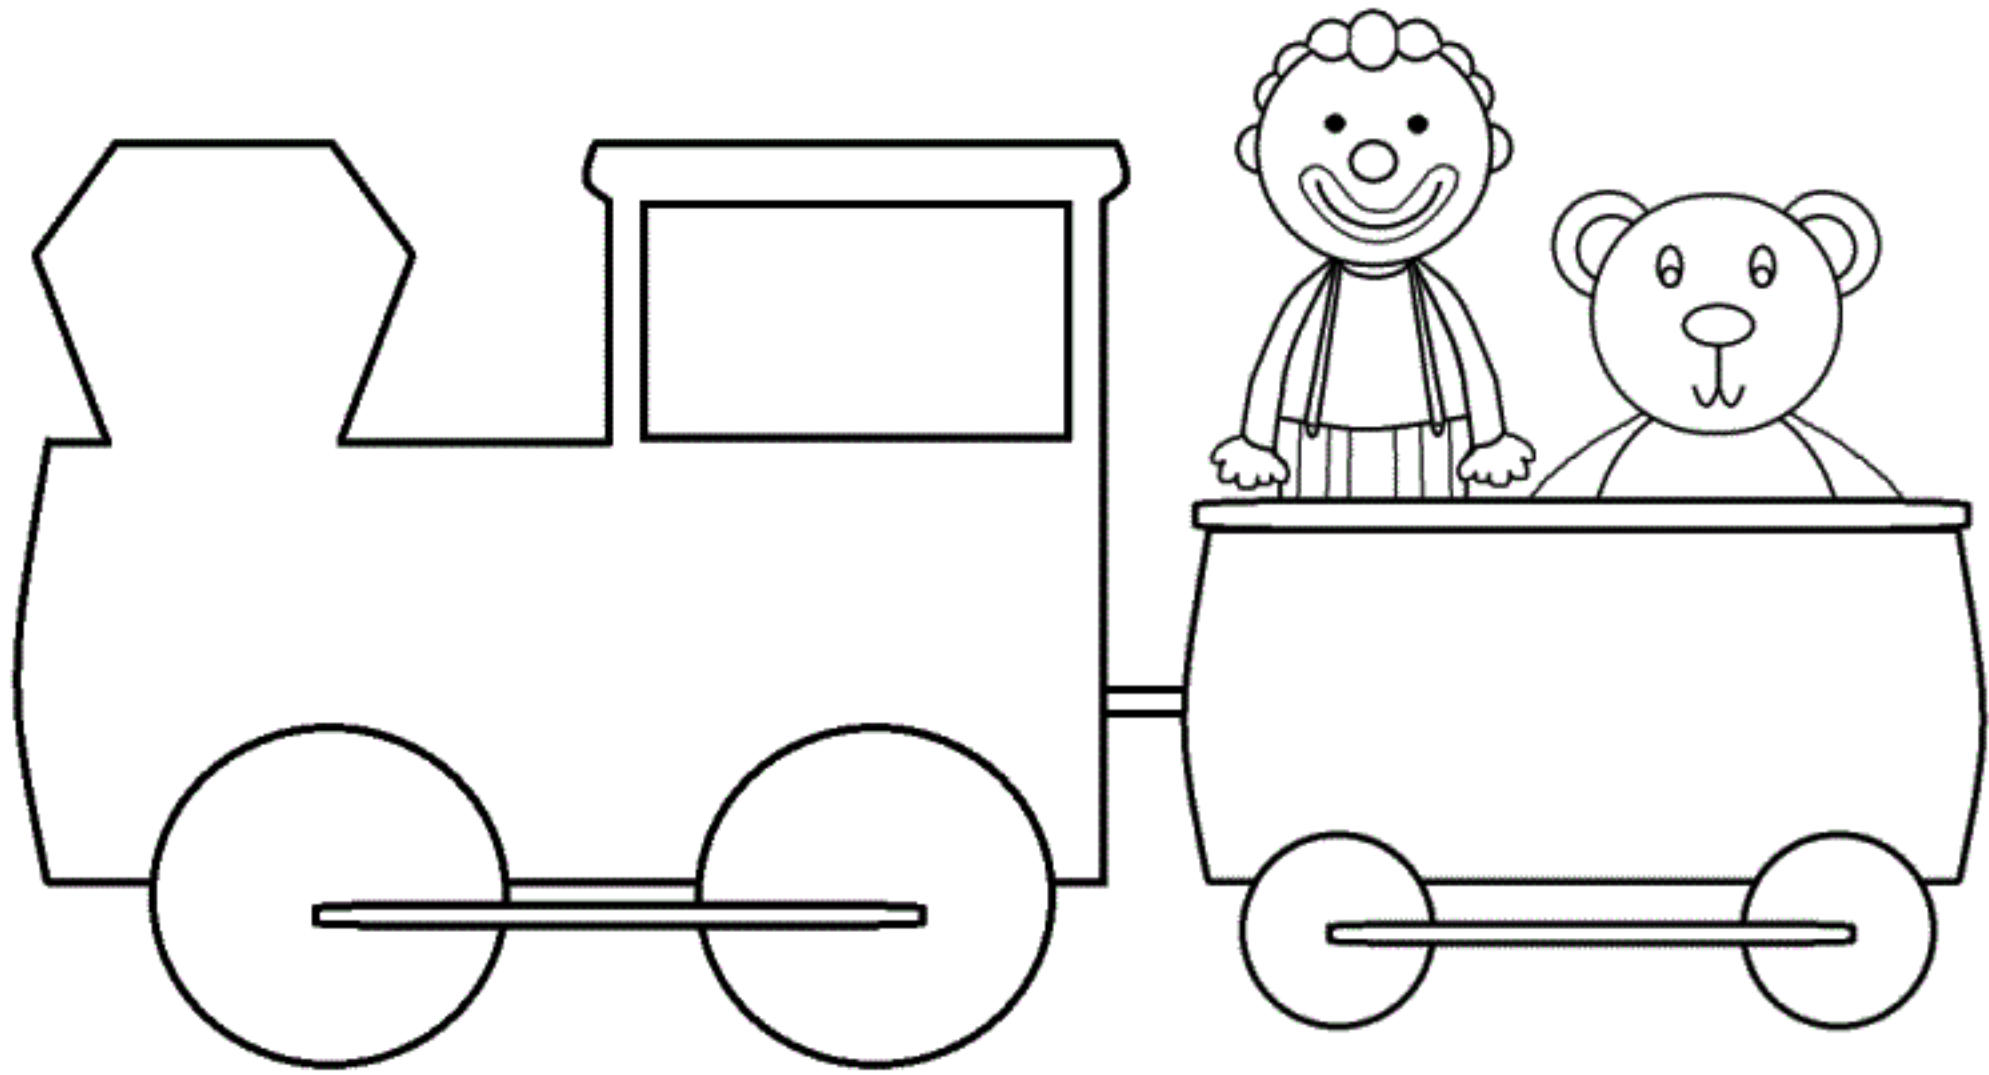

No one would help the little blue engine.

The little blue engine tried to get up the mountain chugging, "I think I can, I think I can."

The little blue engine made it up the mountain and the toys were happy to see all the children in the city.

The little blue engine left the city chugging, "I thought I could, I thought I could."
